DAVID R. MARTIN, SR.

Death of David R. Martin, Sr.

Mr. David R. Martin, Sr. a resident of Gautier, was found dead in the waiting room at the Gautier station Monday morning about six o'clock. He was a night watchman at the L & N Creosote Works, and not going to his home at the usual hour, his son David R. Martin, Jr., and a negro man named Bilbo, started out to search for him and found him in the waiting room of the Gautier station. He had apparently been dead several hours.

Coroner Fails was notified, and he immediately visited the scene and empanelled a jury which decided that Mr. Martin came to his death from apolexy, and had been dead probably since 11:30 or 12:00 o'clock Sunday night.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the residence of the deceased near Gautier, with interment in the Martin's Bluff cemetery. Rev. R. L. Vaughan of Gautier officiated.

Deceased was 64 years of age and had lived in Jackson County his entire life, where he was loved and respected by many friends. He is survived by his widow, five daughters and two sons, the latter being Messrs. Herbert Martin and David Martin, Jr.

Maj. Robert L. GLENN, of Chicago, has through his attorney here closed negotiations by purchasing the FARRAGUT POINT property for the sum of $2,000 cash.

Pascagoula Democrat Star, March 18, 1892

FARRAGUT POINT ABOUT TO CHANGE HANDS.

A sale is about to be effected of the property belonging to the heirs of Maj. George Farragut, father of David Glascoe Farragut, the first Admiral of the United States Navy. It is known as Farragut's Point, situated on the West Pascagoula river, about two miles from the Gulf Coast and embraces 670 acres, the title to which dates bact to an old Spanish grant. The exact date of Mr. George Farragut's death is unknown, but it is supposed to have occurred nearly a century ago. He was buried on the place and a tomb still marks the spot over his grave. The party in treaty for the purchase of the old land mark, is Mr. Robert L. Glenn, of Chicago, who was recently here with his son prospecting for investments in lands. His plan, as near as we ascertained, is to establish a family home, build a number of small cottages and otherwise improve the property.

It is to be hoped that this will prove the initial step towards the change in ownership of other desirable places which may continue unimproved until a better era is awakened by new comers through the force of capital and enterprise, which must surely eventually come.

COUPLE TO RESIDE IN MOBILE

REV. and Mrs. M. E. HULBERT of Mobile left for that place Wednesday night after a brief honeymoon spent at Martin's Bluff, where the bride was born and reared. Mrs. Hulbert, who was formerly Mrs. KATE V. HAVENS, for sometime has been a well known resident of Grant Avenue, from which place she moved part of her furniture this week to Mobile, where they will reside.

The two were married Thursday night at Rev. Hulbert's home on the Government Street Loop, Mobile, by the Rev. J. W. Phillips, in the presence of a few friends. They came to Pascagoula Friday and since then have been staying at Martin's Bluff. For the past 2 years Rev. Hulbert has been pastor of the Baptist church of Citronelle, Ala. He was pastor of the Baptist church of Escatawpa for 11 years, having gone from there to Mobile, thence to Citronelle. Both Rev. and Mrs. Hulbert are well known and have a wide circle of friends.

From the Cirlot collection:

October 14th, 1880, Rev. J. H. Weems wrote the Methodist Christian Advocate and told of his visit to the Salem and New Prospect camp meetings, in company with Rec. Inman W. Cooper:

"Returning on the 18th to rest after visiting Salem Camp meeting, on the 21st left for Campmeeting of West Pascagoula Mission--- took shipping in a water craft, known in these parts as a pirogue and were propelled by the strong arms of Uncle Humphries (a legendary Black man of great age, known by everyone in Moss Point and Pascagoula for several generations and was still living in 1895) pulled 21 miles in about four hours. Mr. Weems and Mr. Cooper had dinner ✓ with the family of Bro. Wm. Martin. This brother is an Englishman and very proud of his nativity, but pecularily remarked that "every sweet has its bitter"... he experienced the bitter of being an Englishman when in the attempt to hear his children "recite": for when he gave out the words "at" and "ouse" and "art", they would stoutly maintain that there were no such words in their lessons. We met Rev. J. S. Calhoun, who turned his excellent horse and buggy over to them and mounted a trim little mule to lead them through the forest. He saw a "live Mormon Church" and great coal klins that looked like houses covered with earth and on fire. He says he stands in the tracts of Richmond Holly, the apostle of the Methodist in the country. He states this is the first year (1880) of the existence of New Prospect Camp Meeting."

Most of this area owned at one time by one James Ware who received it by Spanish Crown Grand dated 1802 and John Havens at Ponticaw Landing also in 1802. Vancleave and Martin's Bluff are synonymous. Rev. J. M. Weems was Pastor of the Moss Point Methodist Episcopal Church, South from 1873 to 1883: Rev. Inman W. Cooper was Presiding Elder (District Superintendent) of the South Mississippi Methodist Seashore District from 1889 to 1890 and Pastor of the Moss Point M. E. Church, South from 1898 to 1898; Rev. J. S. Calhoun evidently was Pastor of the Vancleave Methodist Church in 1880 and in later years at Escatawpa Methodist Church.

Mr. Wm. Martin, Englishman spoke with an accent similar to London Cockney - which drops all the "H's" of such words as: "hat", "house", and "heart". Mr. Martin was for thirty (30) years U. S. postmaster at Vancleave (1897-1927). He was also a Merchant (General Merchandise), and business man - buying and selling turpentine, resin, charcoal and etc. and shipping it to New Orleans and other coast cities by sail boats and schooners.

Dear Charlotte:

The husband of Nora Nancy Martin was not a doctor, Aunt Lu said. He was from the Wiggins area; had the first Packard car dealership there and then moved to Gulfport and opened one there.
His name was Powers! Which you have on the form.

Singleton Martin last livedin California, (the Burbank area)
Aunt Lu claimed that she got the nicest letter from him when her husband, James Henry Martin died. Perhaps you could check the California records as to his death. At least he was alive in 1959.

Mamie Ann told me that Grandfather Martin was the sweetest person. Others have told me the same thing. When the Civil War was over, he gave all his slaves property. They all had a house and land as a gift from him.

Wrong — He had no slaves! Elsa

He was known to be generous to black families. Gave credit, Never repaid in many cases —

Singleton moved to Arizona as his wife had TB. They had a store on Roosevelt Dam for years and must have done very well financially. Then they retired to Burbank, CA. I recall this couple visiting Mississippi and stopping by our house in Ocean Springs. What a darling man he was... personality galore.

I am supposed to get with Aunt Lu and she has many pictures she is going to give to me. I have to make an appointment first. Due to her age, I do not want to pressure her.

Mamie Ann has pictures of the third "set" of children and we are supposed to get together so I can select the photos I want reproduced.

Charlotte, I have not gotten the print made of Grandfather Martin made yet. I am never off when the Mailphoto studio is open. Perhaps, if and when I can get it made, you can add it to the book as a supplement. But then I hope to get you a lot of different photos.

This has been so interesting! Melba Hill, married to Harry Hill, is granddaughter of Isabelle Martin. She told me of visiting the Martin house in Vancleave and each time they went it was crowded with people. Said it was such a happy place. They too enjoyed delicious meals there and with Laura and William Westfall who lived up the road.

Mamie Ann said that as WW II began her mother got information that the family was inheriting a pub in Portsmouth, England. But with the war on and confusion nothing ever came of it because no one went there to claim it. Also, in 1980 some lawyers from Georgia contacted Mamie Ann about an inheritence from Edgar Martin...but heard nothing more on that. Interesting, huh?

I find no record of this — so far — Elsa

I will be in touch!

Cousin Mary Frances Martin Fazzio

P.S. Walter Martin and wife, Dosche, lived in Jackson, MS for years. Mamie Ann thinks they both died in that area but does not have the dates. Aunt Dosche worked for the State of Mississippi but I do not know what Uncle Walter did...although he always chased us with lighted cigars trying to tease us with attempts of touching the cigars to our knees.

Dear Charlotte,

We will not be able to stay the extra days to attend the Martin Reunion, July 6. Really sorry to miss it.

We are going to Philadelphia to my brother's to attend with other Moores our July 4, there Then a visit has to be made to see my nephew in another town. My son, Bobby, can't be off his job in Houston any longer than three days.

Becky has been ill, and Betty and Jim will be going to Hawaii with their son and his wife. Will try for a rain check and attend next time, hopefully, so don't give up on us.

Tell Nell and others Hello for me. Was it Elsie who called me? Anyway, I want to meet her at a future date, though I do not know too much, I'm afraid. I did meet the last Mrs. Martin (mother of the last seven) and knew a majority of the middle group. Your Mom came out of the first three, I believe. Never forget the Reunion, the Children and I attended at the Ryders!

Thanks for all past contacts. I stay too busy with our Senior Center and keeping my grandson in school here. Love to all,

Mary Kate

MARY JANE MARTIN... Mother? Sister?
Signed as a witness at the marriage of WILLIAM MARTIN and ELISABETH CARROLL in Madisonville, St. Tammany Parish, Louisiana. Is this MARY JANE MARTIN the sister of WILLIAM?
Or was she the mother?
Was she in the United States in 1859? When DID she come to Did Aunt Mary take William's daughter Louisa, age two, to England in 1863? The Civil War was terrible in St. Tammany Parish, Louisiana in those years. Everyone was starving. Elizabeth the mother died, as well as two or three babies. Perhaps Aunt Mary felt she was doing the best she could for the surviving little girl by escaping the horror of disease and starvation. Her brother William was at Port Hudson in a situation unable to help support his family.

If Mary and little Louisa did go to England, and the father of Mary, William and James died about 1866/1867, it is easy to understand why William went back to England circa 1867 to get his little girl and sister Mary. He was widowed and most likely wanted Mary to help raise the niece she was protecting...but in America.

Subject: MARTIN'S

Dear Ms. Martin,

I'm sure it is a long shot, I am realted to the Martins from the Samuel & Rebecca (Flemming) Martin's. Their son Caleb Martin, married Lucinda (Breland) and they had (6) six children and my Grandmother, Malinda (Martin) Herring was the 5th child and she lived off of hwy. 29 south of New Augusta, approx. 5 miles and she the Mother of Demaris,my mother.

I got interested to finding the Martins after I had time to search, I was told as a youngster, that My G'Grandmother was "Lucinda Martin". I then began to search for the Martins, I found that Lucinda was a daughter of Joseph & Celie Breland that lived south on hwy 29 a little farther down. and then I began to try to locate who her husband was, and I met Acker Martin that knew some and then I found a page from Grandmother Herring's bible that gave a description of a place that he was buried only it gave a listing of the numbers and no Cemetery. From being around the Military, knew that this was a Military Cemeter some where. This also ment that he must have been in the Civil War and I got on the Internet and after 5 hours of searching, I found him and his other two brothers in the same location and were at this same cemetery. Chalmette National Cemetery in Chalmette, Louisiana. I went down and looked in the Office of the cemetery and Found where their location was and looked and took pictures of their Markers. All except William and they did not have one and they did not know exactly where he was. Continuing to search about the Martins, I found that he had a brother that came to the same area, I Believe it was Bailey Martin.
Ms. Martin, I was think that you could be from the same line of Martins or probably Your Husband.

I would Appreciate knowing the Relation of your Martin Line to the one of Samuel Martin,

Thanks

Sincerely;

Melvin Byrd

They were once all marked.

Recorded by grandson of Mary Louisa Martin Sumrall Rouse.

We made a copy of the cassette tape at the Martin eunion July 6, 1991.

he recording begins in the middle of a conversation....

ouston: Grandpa Martin............belonged to the church.
aebelle: Tell us about the one that started the first Negro school...MARY MARTIN.
ouston: MARY MARTIN?
aebelle: Where was that school located?
ouston: Uhh...around Vancleave somewhere. I don't know exactly. Write it down....
.....Now it was a mystery. I don't know whether she got 1700 dollars or 1700 pounds every year.
aebelle: From who?
ouston: We don't know. It come from England.
...Now a lot of people thought she taught school in the palace. She didn't. She taught the children of the servants of the Queen. She was a teacher for them - a guardian... a..a.. what do you call it again? - (He must mean governess.)
aebelle: What Queen was that? ouston: Queen Victoria... A lot of people said she was a Lady in Waiting - She wasn't. She told me that many times - She wasn't. She taught school.

aebelle: You remember her well?
ouston: Oh sure I do. I remember her well. She lost her mind a little bit when she got old. She got to worrying. She wanted to go back to England. We couldn't send her back to England. Where the devil were we going to send her to?
aebelle: Well, which one was stolen from the father and sent back to England?
ouston: What?
aebelle: Which one of the little girls was stolen from the father and sent back to England?

ouston: I don't know about that. That's a new one on me.
aebelle: Well, that's what his sister always was telling me, ...that one of 'em was stolen from the father... The aunt stole the little girl and she came back here later on.
ouston: I don't know about that.
aebelle: Her mother died when she was an infant.

:\WP51\WPDOCS\MARTIN.WP Doc 1 Pg 8 Ln 1" Pos 1"

ouston: I don't remember your mother's brothers and sisters. I can tell you how they died. I hate to tell you that. They died of malnutrition. They had nothing to eat. Pa was gone. They put him in the army.
aebelle: I's rather see them die of that than stealing.

your grandpa fought?
aebelle: Where at?
ouston: Uh..what's this battle ground over there by Baton Rouge?
arold: Port Hudson?
ouston: Port Hudson.
aebelle: That's Grandpa Bill Martin.

The Association Method

Guest Expert: Maureen Martin, Ph.D., CCC-SLP, CED

Maureen Martin is Director of the University of Southern Mississippi DuBard School for Language Disorders. She is also an adjunct faculty member of the University of Southern Mississippi and has conducted numerous courses, workshops, and inservice professional training sessions. Ms. Martin is a nationally certified speech-language pathologist and teacher of the hearing impaired. She also holds certification in reading, learning disabilities, elementary education, and school administration. She served on the staff of the DuBard School for Language Disorders from 1975 until 1989, when she was named director of the program.

Ms. Martin received her B.S. and M.S. degrees in Speech and Hearing Sciences at the University of Southern Mississippi where she was a student of Etoile DuBard. She earned her Ph.D. at the National University of Ireland. She is a board member of the International Multisensory Structured Language Education Council (IMSLEC). She is also a member of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, the A.G. Bell Association for the Deaf, and the International Dyslexia Association. She is the founder of the International Association Method Task Force.

Overview of The Association Method

▶ Distinguishing Characteristics
One of the most unique characteristics of the Association Method is that it was originally designed for hearing impaired children. Since its creation for children with hearing difficulties, this multisensory approach has been modified and expanded for use with children with other types of language difficulties. Because of its foundation in the hearing-impaired field, this approach includes intense work in phonemic awareness.

▶ Target Audience who served
This approach has been successfully used with individuals who have profound hearing impairment and/or severe speech/language disorders. Additionally, it has been used with individuals with dyslexia, ADD/ADHD, ESL, and other combinations of language learning disabilities. The DuBard School recommends that professionals be trained in the particular disorder in addition to knowing how to teach using the Association Method. For example, a background in speech-language pathology is needed to implement the Association Method with a child with severe language disorders. It has also been used effectively in regular elementary classrooms.

The Association Method employs many of the techniques used in the other MSL programs including a direct and systematic approach to instructing students in the sound-symbols of our language. The approach is multisensory and incremental.

Three of the features of the Association Method which differentiate it from other MSL programs are as follows:
1. A unique system of sound-symbol relationships is used called the Northampton Symbol system. This symbol system, devised by the late Caroline Yates, utilizes 1's and 2's to differentiate between sounds that are written the same but said differently. For example, "oo" may be pronounced as in "boot"(which is a 1) or as in "book' (which is a 2). The Northampton symbols are organized into primary and secondary spellings, based on frequency of usage.
2. A book is made for each child as he/she progresses through the program. The books provide a record of the phonemes, syllables, vocabulary, sentences and questions, and stories and questions that the student has learned.
3. When implemented in its purest form, students are taught to write initially in cursive only, and to read both manuscript and cursive.

Additional features of the Association Method include:

- Multisensory teaching which includes the use of auditory, visual, tactile, and motor-kinesthetic cues for learning
- A slower rate of speech is used to give the children more time to understand what is being said and more time to observe the speaker's lip movements
- Precise articulation
- Color differentiation

The method is implemented in an incremental and systematic manner. Instruction progresses from the teaching of individual sounds to syllables, words of gradually increasing length, basic sentences and questions, more advanced sentence structures and the corresponding questions. Ultimately, when sufficient language skills have been achieved, a transition is made to traditional textbook formats for instruction.

▶ History of the Approach

The Association Method was devised originally by the late Mildred McGinnis, a teacher at the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis from the mid-1920's to 1962. It has been modified and expanded by Etoile DuBard, a former professor at the University of Southern Mississippi. In 1962 the United Way provided seed money for the formation of a school which is now known as the DuBard School. The DuBard School for Language Disorders enrolls children from ages 3-15 in a full-time 11-month educational program providing individualized services to students until they are able to enter other educational settings. The School also provides outclient and evaluation services to other children. The University provides facilities and some services for the program. Students at the University of Southern Mississippi majoring in speech-language pathology, audiology, and education of the deaf may earn practicum hours by working with children in the school under the direct supervision of professionals. The Association Method is used in approximately 20 professional settings in Mississippi, as well as sites in California, Texas, Kentucky, Kansas, Missouri, Georgia, and Tennessee. It is also used in Canada, Mexico and Ireland.

Lindamood-Bell™ Learning Processes

Guest Expert: Patricia C. Lindamood, M.S., CCC-SLP

Patricia Lindamood is a Director of Lindamood-Bell™ Learning Processes, and has responsibilities in clinical supervision, research, and administration. Her background in speech pathology and audiology and her late husband's background in linguistics led to their early interest and seminal research in phonemic awareness / auditory conceptual function, and its predictive relationship to reading and spelling development. Their clinical experience and research resulted in a diagnostic test and treatment program for phonemic awareness/auditory conceptual function that are in use nationally and internationally. The Human Learning and Behavior branch of National Institutes of Health is currently funding two research studies involving the Lindamood concepts. Ms. Lindamood's professional experience includes public school, university, hospital, corporate, and private practice settings. She is also an adjunct instructor for University of California. She received an award for Recognition of a Significant Contribution to the American Speech Language Hearing Association and to the Profession of Speech Language Pathology and Audiology, and the Star Foundation Award for Education, as well as many other honors.

Overview of Lindamood-Bell™Learning Processes Concepts

▶ Distinguishing Characteristics

Lindamood-Bell ™offers a portfolio of approaches for teaching individuals with learning disabilities, and for preventing learning disabilities through a processing approach to instruction in the primary curriculum. In the company's marketing brochure they describe their services as follows: "Lindamood-Bell has pioneered programs to develop the sensory-cognitive processes that underlie reading, spelling, math, visual-motor skills, language expression and comprehension, and critical thinking." They also offer a series of books, kits, videos, and software for instructors to use with students, and they host conferences on learning issues.

The most well known Lindamood-Bell™program was formerly called the Auditory Discrimination in Depth (ADD) Program and has recently been renamed the Lindamood™Phoneme Sequencing (LiPS™) Program, because the acronym ADD became more strongly linked with Attention Deficit Disorder.

The key distinguishing characteristic of the LiPS™Program is its intense focus on a critical precursor skill of learning to read - phonemic awareness - and its application for independence and self-correction in reading, spelling, and speech. The LiPS™Program is not based on the Orton-Gillingham method, as many other MSL programs are. It is both more basic and more extensive in developing the perception of phonemes within words, rather than assuming availability of this perception and providing activities to exercise rather than develop it. It is this lower-level skill of identifying the individual sounds and their order in words that world-wide research documents as predictably missing in struggling readers.

▶ Target Audience - who served

Lindamood-Bell™offers services for students with learning difficulties as well as products and training for educators. Its corporate offices are in San Luis Obispo, California and it has 17 other clinics in 9 states, 8 of which are located in California. The clinics offer diagnostic testing and treatment services for children and adults with learning difficulties, both individually and in small groups. The treatment offered to students covers a wide range of learning difficulties. In addition to the LiPS™Program used to teach students how to be successful in reading and spelling, treatment is also offered for students who have difficulty in oral and written language comprehension and expression, weak visual-motor skills, and weak math skills.

The LiPS™Program stimulates phonemic awareness by having students attend to the mouth actions that produce speech sounds and the motor aspects of phonemes are brought to a conscious level. The process uses Socratic questioning so students discover the mouth actions involved; mirrors are used to verify the actions; labels descriptive of the action are assigned (for example, the sound /p/ is labeled a "lip popper", /f/ is a "lip cooler", etc.); mouth pictures are chosen that represent the actions; and the appropriate letter symbols are associated. This intersensory experience develops the perception of phonemes. When they can be felt and seen and heard they become a more concrete experience.

Based on whether sounds are voiced or unvoiced, and whether lip, tongue, or air stream action produces them, 24 consonants are grouped in 11 categories. Vowels are categorized based on the tongue position and mouth shape that produce them, and 15 vowels are grouped in 4 categories. Since articulatory action is what produces phonemes, this awareness enables students to track and verify sounds within words. For individuals to read independently and self-correct, it is necessary to be able to explicitly compare the phoneme sequences they say with the letter sequences they see. This approach helps students acquire full phonemic awareness, not just better use of an existing level of awareness. A special "respond to the response" procedure for handling errors stimulates feedback that integrates intersensory information for self-correction in reading, spelling, and speech.

Another program offered by Lindamood-Bell™, Visualizing and Verbalizing for Language Comprehension and Thinking (V/V), is used to improve oral and written language comprehension and expression through concept imagery. Students are taught to develop mental pictures while listening or reading. A systematic way of describing the pictures uses words such as what, color, size, shape, movement, number, background, mood, perspective, and sound to stimulate detailed and vivid imagery. Students use the mental images to develop higher-order thinking skills of main idea, conclusion, inference, prediction, and evaluation.

History of the Approach

Patricia Lindamood and her late husband, Charles, began researching the lack of phonemic awareness in poor readers during the 1960's and 70's. Their research led to a treatment program (the ADD Program) first published in 1969. The third edition (now the LiPS™ Program) by Patricia and her daughter, Phyllis, became available in 1998. A test to assess phonemic awareness, the Lindamood™ Auditory Conceptualization (LAC) Test was initially published in 1971. Colored blocks are used to represent the number, sameness/difference, and order of phonemes in patterns of isolated sounds, and in syllables. A distinctive feature of the task in the syllable section is that two spoken syllables must be compared and the change represented as one phoneme is added, substituted, omitted, shifted, or repeated. (For example, if a white block is used to represent /i/, a different colored block must be placed in front of it as /i/ is changed to /pi/. As /pi / is changed to /ip /, the order of the two blocks is reversed, etc.) An extended form of the initial LAC Test is currently being normed, and will include more complex single syllables as well as multisyllable patterns. The revised test will enable more subtle levels of dysfunction to be identified, which is important, because even a minor amount of dysfunction prevents an individual from detecting reading and spelling errors in multisyllable words.

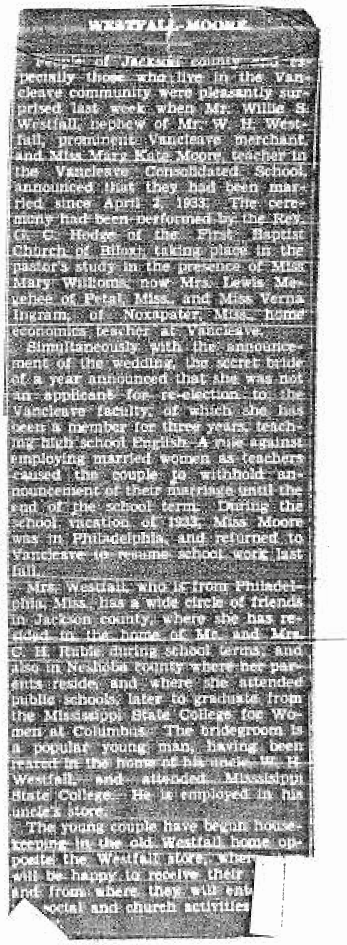
Dianne Martin has been working at the Mississippi Welcome Center for 11 years. She found the job by going to the employment office, looking for work. Martin said she loves her job, "I get to meet all kinds of people and to sell Mississippi. That's an easy thing to do." Martin has been married for 22 years and has an 18-year-old son. When she's not working she attends the Community of Christ Church in Moss Point and she likes to walk, play the piano and watch American Idol. Occasionally her job gets exciting when a celebrity drops by. Once she met George Jones who gave everyone his autograph. She almost met Bon Jovi but he was pulling away in his trailer by the time she realized he was there. Martin's job changed in the year after Katrina. "It slowed down a lot," she said, "People wanted to know what roads and which restaurants were open. It's beginning to pick up again now," she said, "People are asking about casinos and birding trails."



WESTFALL-MOORE

People of Jackson county and especially those who live in the Vancleave community were pleasantly surprised last week when Mr. Willie S. Westfall, nephew of Mr. W. H. Westfall, prominent Vancleave merchant, and Miss Mary Kate Moore, teacher in the Vancleave Consolidated School, announced that they had been married since April 2, 1933. The ceremony had been performed by the Rev. G. C. Hodge of the First Baptist Church of Biloxi, taking place in the pastor's study in the presence of Miss Mary Williams, now Mrs. Lewis Megehee of Petal, Miss., and Miss Verna Ingram, of Noxapater, Miss., home economics teacher at Vancleave.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the wedding, the secret bride of a year announced that she was not an applicant for re-election to the Vancleave faculty, of which she has been a member for three years, teaching high school English. A rule against employing married women as teachers caused the couple to withhold announcement of their marriage until the end of the school term. During the school vacation of 1933, Miss Moore was in Philadelphia, and returned to Vancleave to resume school work last fall.

Mrs. Westfall, who is from Philadelphia, Miss., has a wide circle of friends in Jackson county, where she has resided in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ruble during school terms, and also in Neshoba county where her parents reside, and where she attended public schools, later to graduate from the Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus. The bridegroom is a popular young man, having been reared in the home of his uncle, W. H. Westfall, and attended Mississippi State College. He is employed in his uncle's store.

Jacobs con icted; jury to decide life or death

Crime

■ Teen to be sentenced in shotgun slaying of Bruce Martin

By TODD S. BERGMANN
Mississippi Press Staff

PASCAGOULA — Nineteen-year-old Richard Jacobs learns today whether he will face death by injection or spend the rest of his life behind rs.

t took a jury of seven men and five women 75 minutes Thursday to convict the teen-ager in the capital murder of Bruce Martin, 47, of Vancleave.

The sentencing phase began Thursday afternoon and continued today.

Jacobs was charged with the March 22, 2000, slaying of Martin at the victim's mobile home. Witnesses testified during the trial that Martin's killer shoved a 12-gauge shotgun in his mouth and fired while he was sleeping. Martin's car was then stolen and driven to Texas.

Prosecutor Ben Saucier told the jury, "He's still asleep. Why kill him? It was a thrill to kill?"

Also charged with capital murder were Martin's son, Jeremy Martin, and Jeremy's girlfriend, Crystal Broadus. Both are awaiting trial. Three others are accused of lesser charges in connection with the slaying.

Jacobs was the first to be tried.

The defense attorneys sought to show that Jacobs had pulled the trigger because he had been threatened by Jeremy Martin. In a videotaped interview with police after his arrest, Jacobs said Martin had put a pistol to his head and ordered him to shoot his father.

"He told me he was going to give me to the count of three and if I didn't pull the trigger, he was going to kill me and then kill him," Jacobs said. "I was scared."

According to testimony, the suspects then stole the victim's car and fled west. The shotgun used to kill Martin was tossed in a bayou near New Orleans before they continued their journey to Texas. The gun was later recovered.

Gautier and Hamilton asked the jury to consider Jacobs' age.

But Assistant District Attorney Tim Jones argued, "If they're big enough to pick up a weapon and point and shoot it, they are big enough to be held accountable for it."

During the sentencing phase that began Thursday afternoon, Gautier and Hamilton brought in family members to testify about Jacobs' character.

His father, Andrew Jacobs, testified he never saw his son be violent, drink beer or use drugs.

However, Saucier read a doctor's report that showed Jacobs had smoked marijuana laced with cocaine.

Jacobs' uncle, Ben Lamey, testified he wouldn't even hurt an animal.

"I tried to take him deer hunting one day. He really didn't seem excited about it," Lamey said. "We saw a buck 15 or 20 feet away and he refused to shoot it."

The sentencing hearing resumed today in circuit court.

t. Claude Martin Tells Of Life In German Prison

In an interesting letter to his mother, Mrs. C. W. Martin of Pascagoula, Lt. Claude C. Martin gives the first extensive story of how life goes as a German prisoner of war, that has been received in this locality.

In it Lt. Martin speaks of going ice skating after he had been taught how by a professional skater and adds. "Can't you picture me skating when the most ice I ever saw was in Mississippi at the Gautier Ice House. Winter is setting in, and the shorter days are getting cooler and we are having lots of rain."

Lt. Martin mentions football and baseball and says "Our theatre holds about 300 and we have to run in order to obtain seats. Many have to stand," so it seems that the men have some forms of amusement.

They also have church services for Lt. Martin says that he attends church faithfully every Sunday; that the minister is a good one, an English Methodist chaplain. He also says that the men have plenty of cigarettes, and that he has received two personal packages.

According to the writer there are eight men in his room and they cook their meals together. He promises his mother to cook her a cake and a pie when he gets home. But he adds that he much prefers her cookery.

The letter was written before Christmas and so Lt. Martin closes it by wishing his relatives and friends a merry Christmas and says, "I'll be with you the next time these holidays come."

Lt. Martin's wife and their baby, born August 7, 1944, are residing in McComb until he comes home.

MARTIN

Mrs. Meadie B. Martin, 89, of Pascagoula, died Feb. 19, 2004, in Pascagoula. She was born April 25, 1914 in Orange, Texas.

The Celebrant—
The following anthem is sung or said

Everyone the Father gives to me will come to me;
I will never turn away anyone who believes in me.

He who raised Jesus Christ from the dead will also give new life to our mortal bodies through his indwelling Spirit.

My heart, therefore, is glad, and my spirit rejoices;
my body also shall rest in hope.

You will show me the path of life;
in your presence there is fullness of joy, and in your right hand are pleasures for evermore.

Then, while earth is cast upon the coffin, the Celebrant says these words

In sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ, we commend to Almighty God our Sister, MARGE, and we commit her body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust. The Lord bless her and keep her, the Lord make his face to shine upon her and be gracious to her, the Lord lift up his countenance upon her and give her peace. Amen.

Celebrant: Let us pray.

Our Father, who art in heaven,
    hallowed be thy Name,
    thy kingdom come,
    thy will be done,
        on earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our trespasses,
    as we forgive those who trespass against us.
And lead us not into temptation,
    but deliver us from evil.
For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory,
    for ever and ever. Amen.

Martin, Mary 24

Then may be said

Rest eternal grant to her, O Lord;
And let light perpetual shine upon her.

May her soul, and the souls of all the departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.

Merciful God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who is the Resurrection and the Life: Raise us, we humbly pray, from the death of sin to the life of righteousness; that when we depart this life we may rest in her, and at the resurrection receive that blessing which your well-beloved Son shall then pronounce: "Come, you blessed of my Father, receive the kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the world." Grant this, O merciful Father, through Jesus Christ, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

Almighty God, Father of mercies and giver of comfort: Deal graciously, we pray, with all who mourn; that, casting all their care on you, they may know the consolation of your love; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

After the Commital Deacon LeBatard will pray the evening Collect of Cardinal Newman (who was Beatified on September 19, 2010 in England by the Pope of Rome)

The Celebrant dismisses the people with these words

The God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, the great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant: Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well-pleasing in his sight; through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Bringing back the past in Nauvoo

Depot replica will be tribute to town's unique heritage

By JEWEL BROOKS
Eagle LifeStyles Editor

NAUVOO – Remember going to the theater here before it closed down in the '50s?

Or maybe you got sick and had to make a visit to Dr. Sankey's office. Perhaps you were one of the estimated 3,500 babies he delivered during his busy years of making house calls between 1904 and 1949.

In either case, if you ever want to go back in the past, you can if your past is in Nauvoo. The main reason is because a conscious and concerted effort has been made in the past few years to preserve things of historical value – even if it means recreating something that used to be.

Next weekend's celebration is a prime example. That's when the dedication takes place for the new replica of the old train depot that stood many years beside the railroad track in this tiny village.

The depot is just part of the big picture, however, just a portion of what the Nauvoo Historical Society hopes to accomplish in the way of heritage preservation.

"It's awesome what has been done in such a little town," exclaimed Eddie Key who heads up Walker County's Tourism Council and supports Nauvoo's efforts wholeheartedly. He wants to see other communities in Walker County follow Nauvoo's example.

"There's a few people in Nauvoo who work really hard to make things happen," said Key. "You can tell these folks are giving from the heart. They're putting hours and hours of work into keeping the past alive."

Curiously enough, the new depot is being finished exactly 100 years after the original was built. Somewhere about 1958 it was torn down after the railway discontinued passenger service.

The Historical Society found a way to build it back with donations, fundraisers and a bank loan. The inside's being furnished as a museum, housing memorabilia from early railroading days. There's a caboose next to it that will serve as a concession stand.

Earline McDaniel, vice president of the Nauvoo Historical Society, said the old depot has a way of bringing back memories.

"A lot of people have told me they remember being at the depot and riding the train," she said. "Seems like people remember the depot more than any other one place, probably because it was a hub of activity in the early years."

> Everybody's invited Saturday for the 10 a.m. dedication. There will be speaking, live entertainment (a few good musicians donating their time would be appreciated), and refreshments.

over this country who have Nauvoo ties. We're constantly getting phone calls and inquiries from folks whose families used to live here."

Everybody's invited Saturday for the 10 a.m. dedication. There will be speaking, live entertainment (a few good musicians donating their time would be appreciated), and refreshments.

The Historical Society hopes the depot will be the first of several museums to draw people back.

Maybe someday the old theater will be opened, as well as the small building across the street from it that still has Dr. Sankey's shingle over the door, almost like he left it in '49. He became somewhat famous in his day and is still remembered as the country doctor who one cold winter night showed up at a farmer's shack and delivered four babies – the first quads ever born in Alabama and only the fourth set in the whole country.

The old tin buildings seem sturdy even today, even after years of being vacant. The theater entrance is still the back door like it always was. Half a century has come and gone but not much has changed. The old projector that used to show famous flicks of 50 years ago is still intact. A big old fan sitting out back that circulated the air inside during hot summer matinees can still be coaxed into action.

Across on the other corner is the imposing brick building known as the Harbin Hotel. This building has been lucky enough to get a new breath of life, McDaniel.

"I'd like to restore the doctor's office and the old theater, too" says McDaniel. "The theater needs a good cleaning out. I've thought about making a dinner theater and putting in a 10-foot video screen. It's 225 seats and a balcony."

History is here in this little hamlet that sits nearly on the Walker-Winston county line.

History – and a dedicated effort to keep it alive – is what makes Nauvoo unique and, some say, an example for other small towns to emulate. It means recognizing the value of old things and trying to preserve them before they're gone. The effort didn't start in time to save the original depot. Building it back was expensive and time-consuming but now, once more, it's part of the town like it used to be in bygone days.

The McDaniels bought the old hotel in 1975 and have done wonders to restore it as a bed and breakfast.

Nauvoo has a colorful past, back when coal mining was in its heyday. There were a lot more residents and several businesses. Today it's quite different but people like the McDaniels and a few others believe it's worthwhile to preserve what they can of the past.

The Nauvoo Historical Society was incorporated in 1992 and has been busy ever since.

The McDaniels and others like Margaret Lee, n Dillon, who is the current sident, and B.J. Thomas are d workers. To accomplish a ject like the depot has taken a of effort. Luckily they've had p from other individuals in the imunity who support what y're doing and have been will- to help out with donations or of equipment and labor for ie of the bigger work.

Heritage preservation actual- s the biggest thing going for uvoo. It's still a sleepy little n left behind by the coal ies that once flourished and sed down in the '50s, taking ny of its inhabitants away en there was no work to be nd. Over 600 people used to here. Today the population is ut 250.

Which is not to say it's not a ceful, quaint little bedroom imunity or a good place for irement living. That it is. ere are some nice homes and e folks living here. But the iness district is practically -existent and there's nary a t of industry. Just the big old el, a convenience store, a tan- g salon, and Slick Lizard taurant.

There is a school but it hasn't n used as a school since '87. It e boasted 525 students. At the there was barely over 100.

The old building is still pretty d, a future project perhaps for historical society. This group ild like to save everything t remains of the past. But it's ier said than done. It takes ney to retore old buildings and ney they don't have except ough donations and fundrais-

Key applauds Nauvoo's efforts reserve the past and believes lker County has enough his- cal landmarks to develop her- e tourism as an industry.

The figures show that her- ge tourism draws more than ditional tourism," he said. "It's east 30 percent higher. What of Walker County needs to do romote its heritage. We've got colorful past and many old ldings and fine, old homes. We have to preserve it before it's gone."

He believes heritage tourism could become an industry if it's promoted right to draw people. Once the visitors are here, the whole county benefits economically because it means shopping in local stores, eating at local restaurants and staying in local motels.

Nauvoo sets a good example that other communities should follow, he said.

Special events are held during the year as a way of drawing people back to their roots. Like the coal miners and the veterans. And school alumni.

Besides the hotel, the town has another historical drawing card, the almost 100-year-old Cook House owned by Jean Dillon of Montgomery who serves on the historical society and is a tireless worker for Nauvoo's preservation efforts. The Cook House was built by her grandfather, a big-time coal mining developer in his day, now a shrine open to the public for tours.

On Mother's Day week end every year, she opens the house for public tours and entertainment on the lawn. It's an interesting old house with much of the original furniture still in the rooms.

Margaret Earley Lee, a Nauvoo native now living in Atlanta, wrote the book about Nauvoo's interesting past. It was published in 1991 as Memories of Nauvoo in which she talks about her growing-up years in the community and adds a wealth of information about the town's history and inhabitants, the importance of the railroad and the coal mining boom.

She describes her book as "a nostalgic glimpse of life in and around Nauvoo and Walker County...to provide an informal history of the town...the past 100 years is revealed in stories and over 160 photographs."

It was during her book research in 1989 that she met and became friends with Jean Dillon. The two ladies paid a visit to Earline McDaniel, being anxious to see the hotel restoration they had been hearing about. A friendship was cemented between the three and a common bond of willingness to work together to promote the town and its past.

The first big public event involving both the Cook House and the Harbin Hotel was in December 1989 and they called it simply "Christmas in Nauvoo."

"We said if we could draw 250 or 500 people we'd be happy," recalled McDaniel. "We had about 2,000 to show up."

The traffic jam was incredible. The next year was more organized, with Christmas lights all aglow and a parade winding through town. And so every year since then Christmas in Nauvoo is an annual event.

Public donations enabled the town to spend $6,500 in 1990 to buy Christmas decorations to light up the streets.

"We were amazed at how well people responded," said Gene McDaniel.

But public support has always been encouraging. There were enough donations to buy 140 flags for patriotic events. People made donations for monuments to be erected on the grounds of the hotel saluting Nauvoo veterans killed in the line of duty and coal miners killed in the line of work. There are 17 known war casualties and about 35 known miners whose names are etched in the stone markers.

Through Lee's somewhat long and drawn-out negotiations with the railroad company, she was able to secure a caboose to be moved to the site of the newly built depot. It adds visual interest and will also be functional as a concession stand.

It was Gene McDaniel who saw to the caboose arriving at its destination, laying out the bed and track for its permanent resting spot.

The historical society has been busy completing the inside of the depot as a museum, gathering up railroad memorabilia such as old typewriters, phones, lanterns, clocks, anything that might ha been in use when the depot w operating. They invite donatio of items from the public.

"I never worked on the ra road so I don't know what all w in the depot, but we're trying make it look authentic," sa McDaniel.

B.J. Thomas, treasurer of t historical society, is a retir depot agent who at one tin worked at the Nauvoo location.

"We found out this was a trai ing place for all new agents," sa McDaniel. "We contacted many of them as we could. W know there are eight or 10 st living."

Building the depot co $28,000, with $15,000 bei obtained through a bank lo which has not yet been repaid.

A lucky break for the historic society came recently when family donated a house built 1916.

"We'll try to get the house the National Register of Histo Places," said McDaniel.

Plans are to turn the hou into a museum.

The Martins of Nauvoo

Family plays large part in area's history

RUTH BAKER

The Martin families of Nauvoo have played a large part in the history of the area. Amos and John Harmon "Pomp" Martin were brothers whose roots were in Georgia where their father, James Martin, originated. Their mother was Sarah Davis Martin.

William Lane Martin married Dicenia Elizabeth Manasco. Dicenia's brother was John Manasco, a well-known Nazarene minister. The Manascos were an early family and a story to be told all by themselves.

William and Dicenia had 10 children, one of which died as an infant. The nine married and reared their families, many in the Nauvoo area. The children are: Fannie (m. Ocie Gober), Rachel (m. Albert Dudley), Dessar (m. Albert Noles), Amos (m. Eunice Britt), Rhoda (M. Austin Key), Earnest (m. Ruby Wiggins), Lily (m. Floyd Benson), Marvin (m. Lesta Norris), Robert (m. Rachel Lacey from Maryland).

Nearby, built farther back, was the home of William and Dicenia. There was a syrup mill set up between the two homes where sugar cane was crushed and the juice cooked into syrup. This "molasses" formed a staple grocery in most homes in those years. Many times it was used as a substitute for sugar.

The two brothers were noted for their watermelons and syrup.

Old Bethel Church is now again being used for services. Grandma Manasco gave the timber from which the church seats were made in the original church in those early years. I am told that some of those pews still remain.

Amos Martin married Eunice Britt on July 6, 1924. They had three sons: Loyd (m. Geneva Nix), Lowel (m. Francis Givens), Billy Joe "B.J." (m. Gaynell Whitlock and later Eugenia Welch). Between them they gave Amos and Eunice 10 grandchildren (two of which are deceased) and 10 great-grandchildren.

Amos and Eunice bought 61 acres from Archie Keeton and added more to a total of 164 acres. Eunice and the boys farmed while Amos worked in the coal mines, helping as he could.

The first Oak Grove Church was on their property. The spot where it stood is still called "church house acre." Water was used from a spring on the property. Amos was a deacon of Oak Grove for many years.

Eunice Britt Martin is one of those rare individuals who is so full of goodness and meekness that it emanates outward to everyone with whom she comes in contact. As the old-timers used to describe a person like her: "They don't have a mean bone in their body."

Morris Noles and Jo Ann Noles Welch are nephew and niece to Eunice. They say, "She never was too tired or too busy to take time for all of us kids."

They add, "Her house and yard were always full of kids."

It seems Jo Ann and B.J. were buddies. Eunice would give them a little container of kerosene each and send them into the garden to pick bugs off the vegetables. A prize was promised to the one who got the largest number.

These two had a playhouse complete with a fence, flowers, a small cookstove, pots, pans and dishes. They cooked, baked breads and cakes just like Eunice did.

Jo Ann tells one on Morris that he made the supper "circuit between home then to Delia's and Fred's and end up for his third meal at Amos and Eunice's house. He once said to Eunice, "Everybody had fried taters but you can beat them all."

Eunice taught the kids to bury horse apples to mellow. They remember how good they were they dug them up to eat.

Of all the kids in the yards and house playing, Eunice remarked to me, "One thing I wouldn't put up with was fussing and fighting. If that started, I'd get a switch and I used it on mine and any others involved – all alike."

Amos is deceased and Eunice lives with a son in Adamsville, but their lives still influence the Nauvoo community through the ones who know and love them.

The world would be a better place if we had more Eunice Martins who live their religion every day instead of talking about it. She is a "good" woman.

HURLEY — Helping people discover who they are through tracing their family gives Else Martin great satisfaction. As the genealogy and local history librarian at the Pascagoula Library, she enjoys the daily challenges of her job.

"It involves everything from helping students with projects to sharing information with researchers," she said. "I help people find relatives, from parents to children to ancestors. The requests change every day."

People who are doing family research really want to know, she said. When a search yields results, she shares the researcher's pleasure. "It is so fulfilling to know you helped someone find family."

Born of first-generation American parents, Martin grew up in the Harleston community, north of Hurley. "All four of my grandparents were born in Denmark, where family records are preserved. The joy my parents had in sharing family records with me is helped me realize early how important family is."

Her father's parents came to America as newlyweds in 1887. Her mother's parents met and went to school together in West Denmark, Wis. Martin's parents met in Mississippi at the new Danish colony of Granly in north Jackson County.

Her father, Hans Nygaard, had grown up in a Danish community in Texas, reared as a southern Danish-American. Her mother, Herdis, was a widow with two sons, Allen and Harvey Hedegaard.

"My parents married in Granly. Theirs was the first wedding there after the community was established."

Granly, which means "evergreen shelter," survived as a small colony, Martin said. Descendants of the families who lived there have a reunion every December with a traditional Danish Christmas celebration.

Growing up, Martin absorbed the family history told to her by her parents and her one surviving grandmother, who lived with Martin's family during World War II.

"My grandmother was an avid reader and writer, an artist with needlework. She came to America as a 16-year old newlywed. I used to sit by her for hours and watch her sew. I was a privileged child to grow up in a wonderful dual setting."

Proud as she is of her Danish heritage, Martin is equally glad she was born and reared in Jackson County.

"I'm happy I grew up in this environment. The people I knew growing up are wonderful friends. I get delight from working with these families."

When Martin attended high school in Moss Point, she had a 55-mile round trip every day. "It was a wonderful experience to be in the band and be a part of a good school."

Other than her husband and four children, the biggest thrill of her life was a trip to Denmark. "I rented a car and drove out to find all the old farm homes of my four grandparents. I met relatives and visited the church where they were baptized and married."

Her ancestors were educators in Denmark. "One helped write the
